SAW ROCKETS; WOULD NOT GO TO SHIP'S AID

Sensational Charge Against Captain of Liner Californian is Made by Engineer Aboard Ship.

MAZE OF CONFLICTING STATEMENTS

Washington, April 26.—In a sworn statement filed today with the senate committee investigating the Titanic disaster, Ernest Gill, donkey engineer on the liner Californian, now at Boston, said that vessel was so close to the Titanic on the night of the tragedy that the latter's distress rockets were plainly visible. He charged that the captain of the Californian refused to go to the aid of the distressed vessel.

Captain Stanley Lord, of the liner Californian, prepared to enter a sweeping denial of the statements by Gill, took the witness stand at 3:10 p. m. Gill's affidavit was listened to with the deepest interest by the committee. Gill was present and was placed on the stand immediately after Chairman Smith had finished the reading of the affidavit.

Tells His Story on Stand. "I saw the ship, which I took to be the Titanic," said Gill after being sworn, "some time after midnight. She was about ten miles away and went past us apparently at full speed. She was a big ship, and I saw two tiers of lights. The Californian at the time was stopped and she was drifting with the flow."

The vessel, Gill testified, must have been plainly visible to the bridge and the lookouts, as well as the rockets which were sent up later from the vessel. The Californian's captain, he said, paid no attention to the distress signals and his refusal to get up steam and go to the aid of the stranger so incensed the crew that Gill tried to organize a protesting party among the men. He failed, he said, because of the timidity of the men.

Not Over Twenty Miles Away. "What time did the Californian get up steam?" inquired Senator Fletcher. "I don't know exactly," said the witness, "but it was some time after 5 o'clock."

From the rockets Gill judged the distressed ship to be not more than twenty miles off. He described the rockets, his description tallying with that given by

IS LOOKING FOR RELATIVES HERE

Young Man Did Not Know He Has a Brother and Sister.

HE WAS BORN IN CITY

Having recently been supplied with information that he has a brother and sister, George Succop, an orphan, whose home is at Chicago, is in Fort Wayne making an effort to locate his relatives, whom he has never seen. The young man did not know until recently that he had a relative in the world.

Mr. Succop is 22 years of age. He was born at Hope hospital in Fort Wayne, where his mother died. When but a week old he was taken to Chicago where he has since resided. He came to Fort Wayne about a week ago and after a diligent search he was informed by William Myers, of the Eckart meat market, that a brother and sister formerly resided here. It seems, however, that nobody in Fort Wayne now knows where the relatives are living. He has been supplied with photographs of his relatives, but thus far has no further information concerning them.

Since coming to Fort Wayne the lad has been told that his real name is Robert Isett. He is a chauffeur and a member of the Chauffeurs' union of Chicago. Unless fresh clues are furnished him today in finding his brother and sister, he will return to his home Saturday evening.

Manager Frank E. Stender, of the Temple theater, announces that the popular playhouse will close for the season on May 12.

AND THIS IS NO IDLE QUESTION

HAVE YOU BEEN COUNTED?

Supt. J. N. Study, of the Fort Wayne schools, calls attention to the fact that unless all the eligible people of Fort Wayne are included in the school census, which closes this week, this city will suffer material injury. Every person between the ages of 5 and 21 years must be listed. If the enumerators have failed to include the eligible members of your household, telephone Superintendent Study about it at once. "Remember," says Supt. Study, "that the larger the report in this census, the lower the tax rate is. Furthermore, the rank of Fort Wayne among the cities of Indiana is set by this census. We are third and will retain that rank if a full census be had." Have YOU been counted?

BODIES OF ASTOR AND STRAUS FOUND

Sea Gives Up Remains of Millionaires to Death Ship—Body of C. M. Hays is Also Recovered.

New York, April 26.—The bodies of Col. Body of Grand Trunk Railroad President is Identified.

Halifax, N. S., April 26.—The body of C. M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk railroad, has been added to the list of identified dead picked up near the scene of the Titanic disaster. This announcement was made this morning by A. C. Jones and company, Halifax agents for the White Star line, who received the news in a wireless message from the cableship Minia.

DIES AT MARION HOME.

Samuel Myers, formerly an engineer on the G. R. & I. railroad, and a resident of Fort Wayne, is dead at the Soldiers' home at Marion, Ind., where he had made his home for several years. His mother, who is 95 years of age, resides with her son, John Myers, at Marion.

Mr. Myers is also survived by one son, John Myers, foreman of the Pennsylvania round house, and three daughters: Mrs. Elizabeth Dondrick, of Kansas City; Mrs. Lottie Miller, of Antwerp, O.; and Mrs. Ruth Ryder, of Apple Creek, O. Four brothers and four grandchildren also survive.

20 SALOONS MUST CLOSE AT KOKOMO

Supreme Court Reverses Lower Court in Case on Appeal.

HOLDS CITY IS "DRY"

Indianapolis, Ind., April 26.—Kokomo is "dry" and the twenty or more saloons there will have to quit business according to the decision today of the supreme court reversing the Howard circuit court in an appeal from its action granting a liquor license to Michael O'Donnell. The plaintiff was Gilbert D. Jay, a leader of the "dry" forces of Kokomo.

Howard county, including Kokomo was "dry" under the county option law. When the city and township option law was enacted a local option election was called in Kokomo and the "drys" won by 28 votes. The election board found that the tally sheet for one ward was incorrect and that really the city had voted "wet" by 44.

Jay then filed affidavits before the county commissioners that the result had been obtained by fraud and the commissioner sustained him and decided Kokomo was "dry." O'Donnell appealed to the circuit court against the commissioners' action and was granted a liquor license. Twenty more saloons were then opened. Jay appealed to the supreme court and was sustained.

The supreme court says the election board had no authority to go behind the return: that all its power lies in tabulating the vote.

TRANSPORT GOES AFTER REFUGEES

Buford Will Pick Up All Americans Who Want to Quit Mexico.

BECOMES MORE GRAVE

Washington, April 26.—The army transport Buford will leave San Francisco tonight for the west coast of Mexico to pick up any American refugees who may wish to leave the country. The Crook will visit Topolobampo, Altata, Mazatlan, all in the state of Sinaloa; San Blas, Tepic, Manzanillo in Colima, and Acapulco, in Guerrero. The vessel is sent at the request of the state department after urgent requests from many Americans stranded in the states bordering the Pacific.

Since the rebels began to make headway in their operations along the Pacific coast communication has been cut with many interior towns, where Americans are known to reside. This has left the state department and others without any information as to the safety of these people and this in the face of numerous reports of the wanton acts of both bandits and organized rebels. Today's reports to the state department declare the situation in Mexico is generally becoming worse. Bands of Marauders are causing much uneasiness by their activity.

ROOSEVELT FORCES WIN AFTER ALL-NIGHT BATTLE

Gov. Hadley Swings Missouri Convention Over to the Colonel, Driving Taft Leaders to Surrender.

ASKS PASTOR TO SEE PRIZE FIGHT

Governor Marshall Wants Him as Witness If Law is Violated.

TERRE HAUTE STIRRED

Terre Haute, Ind., April 26.—The ministers of this city appealed to Governor Marshall some time ago to prevent an alleged prize fight scheduled for this city on next Tuesday night and today they received a letter in reply to their appeal.

The governor advises the ministers to accompany the chief of police and sheriff to the fight and report any violation of the law. He says he has also instructed the police and sheriff to make arrests if the exhibition developed into a prize fight.

The Governor's Letter.

The letter follows: "I have instructed the chief of police of Terre Haute and sheriff of Vigo county to request you to accompany them to the alleged prize fight on next Thursday night in the agency at Terre Haute. I have instructed them, in the event it develops into a prize fight, to arrest all persons under the statutes that would be liable for violation of the law. I am asking you to attend as disinterested citizens so you may not only know that the officers are doing their duty, but may be able to testify to the violation of the law. You, of course, recognize the fact that the law cannot be enforced by the governor if law-abiding citizens will not do their full duty toward furnishing testimony necessary to convict the violators.

"Respectfully,"

"THOMAS R. MARSHALL, Governor."

Rev. Curnick's Telegram.

The telegram sent by Rev. Curnick to Governor Marshall follows:

St. Louis, April 26.—Governor Herbert S. Hadley and his friends at 6:30 o'clock this morning swung the Missouri state republican convention for Col. Roosevelt after an all-night session, breaking a 24-hour deadlock in which the Taft leaders finally were driven to surrender.

Eight delegates at large to the national republican convention, all Roosevelt men and all instructed for him, were elected after two Taft leaders had been elected and then had resigned their place on the Missouri delegation when the convention voted instructions for Roosevelt. The convention will go down in the annals of Missouri politics as one of the most stubborn and dramatic fights in the history of the state republican organization.

Taft Delegates Resign.

Mayor Frederick H. Kreismann, of St. Louis, and Charles D. Morris, of St. Joseph, the latter chairman of the state committee were the Taft leaders who were elected and resigned as delegates at large when the state convention voted to instruct the delegation for Roosevelt.

In making their resignations they charged violation of a "gentlemen's agreement" by which they declared the Roosevelt manager had assured them that the delegates at large would be uninstructed.

Gov. Hadley replied to the declarations of Mayor Kreismann and Chairman Morris in this connection by asserting that he had not been a party to any so-called "gentlemen's agreements." The governor asserted that throughout the bitter fight which preceded the formal opening of the convention he had refused to attempt to deliver the votes of Roosevelt delegates on any proposition.

The eight delegates at large, each with a one-half vote follows:

Governor Herbert S. Hadley, Jesse Tolerton, of Bronson; Walter S. Dickey, of Kansas City; Fred Eason, John D. McNeely, of St. Joseph; Hugh McIndoe, of Joplin; John W. Jippin, of Springfield, and Alfred H. Spear, of Chamoux. As national committeeman from Missouri to succeed Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, the convention elected Thomas K. Niedringhaus, of St. Louis.

The Roosevelt forces only achieved final sweeping success after four distinct fights with the Taft leaders, who resisted each step stubbornly.

Made a Last Stand.

The final battle, after daylight had flooded the big armory and the delegates were almost worn out by their all day and all night struggle, was on the question of instructing the eight delegates at large to the national convention. The Taft forces, led by members of the St. Louis delegation, made a last rally in efforts to prevent last instructions for Roosevelt.

But they were swept away by the Roosevelt tide and by a vote of more than 2 to 1 the Roosevelt forces carried their point, which resulted in the withdrawal of Mayor Kreismann and Chairman Morris as delegates to the Chicago convention and the election of Roosevelt men in their places.

Held Rump Convention.

After the adjournment of the convention a small number of Taft supporters met in a hotel and named four delegates at large to the national convention. The Taft delegation was announced as follows:

Joseph E. Black, Richmond, Mo.; John A. Duncan, St. Joseph; Berryman Hendwood, Hannibal, and Harry D. Train, Kansas City.

Former State Senator Henry L. Ends presided and announced that resolutions condemning Governor Hadley for "betraying" the Taft men in the pre-convention agreement were adopted. The President Taft Displays Some Rather Fine Fighting Qualities.

Easily the most surprising feature yet developed in a presidential campaign that is unusually rich in promise of the spectacular, is the manner in which President Taft has climbed into the arena and begun heaving oratorical rocks at his old friend and fellow-patriot, Colonel Roosevelt. The fusillade started by the president at Springfield, Mass., yesterday, when he cast aside all reserve, minced no words and veiled no hints in attacking the strenuous gentleman from Oyster Bay, was distinctly a revelation to those who have considered the president as a calmly judicial person who sat tight and could not be ruffled.

Admittedly the situation had reached a point where the president felt bound no longer to consider forbearance as a virtue, and he not only tossed his metaphorical hat into the ring, but followed it with some good, stiff punches that indicated that he is quite able to adopt the Roosevelt fighting tactics if he is forced to do so. Doubtless nobody was more greatly surprised at this reversal of form than Colonel Roosevelt himself, and if the samples up to date are to be considered fairly representative of the sort of ammunition with which the president is loaded, the clash between these two old-time friends is likely to prove a luminous contribution to American political history. The president is showing some real fighting form, and he evidently intends to demonstrate that he, also, has a dog that Mr. Roosevelt has "gotta quit kickin' round."

If this talk of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the pure food champion, as a republican candidate for governor in Indiana this year is really to be taken seriously, somebody ought to jump in and save Dr. Wiley from his friends. Upon second thought, however, perhaps it isn't necessary. With his scientific eye, Dr. Wiley ought to be able to recognize an adulterated lemon like that at sight.

Mayor W. W. Zimmerman, of Richmond, has proclaimed May 3 as "cleaning day" in that city, and the school children have been enlisted in the movement to make Richmond cleaner than ever before. The idea isn't a bad one by any means, if it furnishes but a temporary illustration of what a city can do in this direction if it tries.

In filing his certified expense schedule as required by law, Congressman Crumpacker discloses the fact that he expended but ninety-four cents in making his campaign for renomination on the republican ticket in the Tenth district. The high cost of living has evidently not invaded Mr. Crumpacker's district to any appreciable extent.

In a nutshell, the situation appears to be that the harvester combine doesn't suspect for a minute that it is a trust, and it doesn't propose to dissolve without a fight with Uncle Sam in the courts, despite the argumentative persuasion of government legal representatives who have sought to convince it of the error of its ways.

AMERICANS IN MEXICO.

(Indianapolis News.)

The stories told by the American refugees from Mexico seem to indicate that our people are not popular in the so-called republic to the south of us. Other foreigners do not seem to have suffered seriously—at least there are no reports to that effect. But with our people it is different. Only the other day it was announced that the "unions" in Mexico were demanding that American railroad employees give place to Mexicans. Americans have been assaulted and robbed by brigands, and it is not believed that the government is doing much to protect them. The rebels are animated by a strong anti-American feeling.

The truth is that the whole country is in disorder. The best thing that Americans can do at the present time is to get out of Mexico. The government will be responsible for any property losses, and for any outrages inflicted on American citizens—that is, if there ever is a stable government in Mexico. Doubtless the high tone taken by our state department has increased the irritation. Yet it is not likely that the bandits who are now ravaging the country know anything about our state department, or what it said. But the government does. And it has shown its resentment. We think that our government did all that it could do at the time, and that it spoke with great moderation.

The case is one of extreme difficulty. It is not pleasant to think that our people should suffer outrage in a country that is supposed to be friendly to us. Nor is it pleasant to reflect that there is a feeling in Mexico that we are not strong enough to protect our citizens. But the consequences of intervention would be so serious, and the possibilities resulting therefrom so alarming, that the administration very properly holds its hand. There should be no thought of intervention in Mexico until the best public opinion of the country, with full knowledge of the situation, is convinced that no other course is possible.

RAILROAD STRIKE DEPRECATED BY PRESS.

Prosperity Endangered.

Pittsburg Dispatch:—"Both employers and employed in all such disputes should reflect that more is to be gained by enjoying the present revival of prosperity than destroying it during the duration of the strike, both for themselves and for the public at large."

Public Has Rights.

Philadelphia Inquirer:—"It is not as though the companies and the men were the only parties concerned. Should the threatened strike occur, the chief sufferer would be the public. Even a partial suspension of the transportation service would subject it to intolerable inconvenience and heavy loss. It is hard to believe it possible that such a crime against society will be committed when arbitration presents a way of avoiding it."

Responsibility.

New York World:—"His (Mr. Stone's) responsibilities as a citizen and member of a civilized society are indeed great. Will they be arbitrarily employed as now contemplated? 'To order a strike which by his own words would tie millions of people up in foodless cities would be to commit as grave a crime against the public welfare as can easily be imagined.'"

Hardship.

Pittsburg Post:—"The country can hardly bring itself to believe that the men who hold the throttle will desert their posts of duty, tie up traffic, demoralize business and impose hardship on thousands who depend on the railroads."

Prudence.

Rochester Democrat and Republican:—"Common prudence suggests that the engineers will do well to exhaust every peaceable method of adjusting their differences with the railroads before proceeding to extreme measures. Otherwise they will be unable to secure the support of public opinion."

Avoid Coercion.

New York Tribune:—"The time has passed for arbitrary dealing. The far-reaching interests of the great traveling and shipping public are involved, and if the principals are unable to reach an agreement they must resort to the good offices of some third and disinterested party if they would avoid public censure."

Mediation.

Boston Globe:—"During the past two years more than a dozen serious railroad controversies have been amicably settled under the Erdman act by the Arbitration board, most of them decidedly in favor of the employees. In view of this fact it is not strange that Mr. Stone should intimate that he would welcome mediation."

Engineers' Demands.

Baltimore Sun:—"The engineers demand wages such as would equal those paid in the west, northwest, southwest and southeast, where they are alleged to be accompanied with better working conditions than we are asking for. They say that increased earnings and volume of business make it perfectly possible for the railroads to accommodate them in this demand."

Syndicalism.

Boston Transcript:—"This is not the old trades unionism that recognized the legitimate relation between the interests of employers and employed. It is more like the new and dangerous syndicalism."

THE COST OF SMOKE.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

An estimate made in Chicago of the loss and damage by smoke in that city puts it at $38,000,000. The population of the Greater Pittsburg is, roughly, one-third of Chicago's. But its smoke is somewhat worse. On the basis of Chicago's calculation it may be inferred that Pittsburg's loss from that source is in the neighborhood of $17,000,000 to $18,000,000.

Of course, we cannot go on with our manufacturing operations without smoke, it would cost more than that to stop the smoke. But it is exceedingly archaic that because there was a day of hardly more embryonic development when black smoke was a sign of industrial activity to conclude that it must always be so. The fact is that for the greater share of our consumption of coal it has been fully demonstrated that it can be consumed more economically and effectively without smoke than with. It has been proved by experience that locomotive engines can be run without smoke. Well-known stationary engines in this city are operating without smoke every day, while hundreds of their neighbors are pouring out black smoke on the plea of necessity. The day when coal is to be turned into electricity at the mines, to furnish light, heat and power to the cities, seems far distant; but its feasibility for many purposes is beyond question.

It certainly seems that it should be worth while to Pittsburg to save the sum indicated by the Chicago investigation. Why not stir up the civic spirit to abolish all smoke that science shows to be industrially preventable?

But three minutes was required for the jury to convict Earl Reber, charged with assault and battery on his wife, being fined $1 and costs. The case grew out of his grabbing their three year old daughter from the mother when up street and took it to the home of his parents. Both were refused a divorce some weeks ago.

Miss Emma Gillig, of the Old Adams County bank, is home from Fort Wayne, where she spent Thursday with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Harding, of Fort Recovery, Ohio, who is a patient at the St. Joseph hospital.

Four cars of foreigners arrived yesterday from Chicago to work in the best fields this summer.

Mrs. Al Caskill left last evening for Niles, Mich., for a visit with relatives. Police at 10 o'clock last night called at the home of Oliver Everett and upon his answer took him into their custody for a stabbing affray which he and Martin Burkhead engaged in, and the latter being stabbed on the left side and just under the heart. The two had been quarreling over a horse at the Lafontaine Handle factory, where they are employed as teamsters. Burkhead is confined to his bed and under the care of a physician.

LAST HONORS TO GEN. FRED GRANT

Imposing Military Procession Marks Funeral Occasion.

PRESIDENT IS THERE

New York, April 26.—Military men and men prominent in public and private life gathered today to pay the last solemn honors to Major General Frederick Dent Grant, who died here April 13. The funeral exercises were deferred until today to await the arrival of the general's daughter, the Princess Cantacuzene from her home in Russia. The services were held in the chapel of the Grand Army of the Republic, the little chapel was too small to allow the admittance of the general public, but an opportunity was given to all New York to pay its tribute as the long military procession made its way to the top of muffled drums over a five mile line of march from the battery to the West Shore ferry at 42nd street. At the latter point the government orders provided for a special train to take the body to West Point for interment.

Distinguished People There. President Taft, Vice President Sherman and General Leonard Wood were perhaps the most distinguished persons who came to New York today for the funeral. The general's immediate family was all in attendance including Mrs. Grant, her son, Captain U. S. Grant, her daughter, the Princess Cantacuzene; the general's sister, Mrs. Nellie Sartoris, and also Mrs. Grant's brother and sister, Judge Honore, of Chicago, and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

The pall-bearers included Senator Root, Andrew Carnegie, Henry W. Taft, General Tasker H. Bliss, General Horace Porter, General William Crozier, General T. H. Barry, General H. G. Sharps, Hamilton Fish, H. H. Kohlsaat, Dr. Robert Abbe and others. Honorary pall-bearers representing the military order of the Medal of Honor were General Daniel L. Sickles and General Horatio C. King.

In Charge of Service. Bishop Samuel Fallows, of Chicago, and Chaplain E. B. Smith, of Governor's Island, had charge of the service in the chapel, and the honor of serving as guard to the casket was borne by the coffin on the march through New York city went to an escort comprising General Bliss, temporarily in command of the department of the east, and his staff; General C. F. Roe, of the New York national guard and his staff and the United States Grant post of the Grand Army of the Republic. Places immediately following this guard of honor were assigned to the third battalion of the 25th infantry, to two troops of military, the veterans of artillery and other military organizations. Just behind the caisson bearing the general's body came the general's horse, Pet, caparisoned in black.

HERE NONSENSE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Taft as Cabinet Officer Present When Harvester Suit Was Halted.

HE CONCURRED IN IT

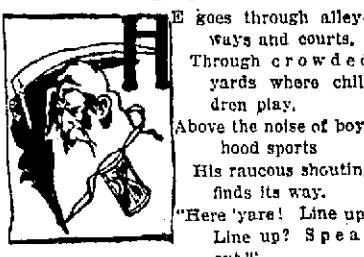

Oyster Bay, N. Y., April 26.—"The talk about the 'suppression of the report' is nonsense," said Colonel Roosevelt last night, in a statement setting forth his connection with the International Harvester company case. Colonel Roosevelt asserted that at a meeting with his cabinet, at which Mr. Taft was present, it was decided that the bureau of corporations be instructed to complete its investigation of the Harvester company before any suit was instituted, following the usual course of procedure in such cases. Mr. Taft, he added, concurred in this decision.

During the remainder of his administration, a period of a year and a half, Colonel Roosevelt said, the commissioner of corporations was unable to complete his investigation. He said that in the three years of the present administration Mr. Taft at any time could have ordered the attorney general to bring suit against the Harvester company, or could have requested the commissioner of corporations to hasten his investigation, but that Mr. Taft had taken no action "except that now taken five days before the Massachusetts primary."

Colonel Roosevelt also said that when the Northern Securities suit was brought against the Morgan interests in 1904, he was expecting to run for president, but that when the Harvester company matter came up in 1907 he knew he would not be a candidate the following year, so that if the action taken in this case did secure the good will of "any of the Morgan interests for anybody, it secured their good will for Mr. Taft."

How can he make a profit when he only charges for the lines. And puts them up for people free. Whether it rains or whether it shines? Whether the busy housewife smiles. Or in a sudden anger, frowns. He keeps his path of life for miles—A life made up of ups and downs.

The boys who watch him at his task. Envy the speed at which he climbs. And if you talk to them and ask "What they would like to be, nine times in ten they'll answer with a grin. 'If I can't be a cop, why don't I'd like to climb a pole like him. An' b. one of dem ciss-line men!'"

Thin Folks Made Fat

Good, healthy flesh can only be gained by the use of the proper food, together with natural action of the organs of assimilation. Nine people out of ten in order to weigh as much as they ought and be perfectly healthy, should use Samose, the great flesh-forming food and health restorer. Weigh yourself before commencing to use these little tablets, and see how your weight increases from week to week.

Samose does not contain a particle of starch or pepsin, nor is it any nauseating preparation, such as is usually recommended to make people fat, and which does not build up good healthy tissues. Samose has valuable flesh-forming properties, tones up, and strengthens the whole system, helps the food that is eaten to be assimilated in a natural manner, and absolutely restores health to all the organs.

If you are not perfectly satisfied with the results from Samose, Meyer Bros. Co. will return your money without any quibbling.

ENDS CATARRH

Sprays, Douches, Snuffs and Ointments Won't Kill the Persistent Catarrh Germs.

HYOMEL, THE ANTISEPTIC AIR, WILL

When you can go to any drug store in any civilized community on earth and buy for only $1.00 a remedy that will quickly rid you of hawking, spitting and snuffling, why do you allow the devilish germs of catarrh to undermine your health and destroy your efficiency?

Quit sprays and douches. Liquid cannot penetrate into the nooks, folds and crevices of the irregular mucous membrane. Neither can it get into the bronchial tubes that lead to the lungs and where germs thrive and multiply. If you believe that liquids reach the air tubes, try to swallow a little water the "wrong way." Such a test will effectively demonstrate to you the idle theory that sprays and douches can cure catarrh.

HYOMEL is a pleasant antiseptic air which, when breathed, penetrates into the folds and crevices of the sore, germ-infested membrane and also goes deep into the air cells of the lungs, killing all germs.

A HYOMEL outfit costs $1.00. Extra bottles of HYOMEL, if needed, 50 cents. Meyer Bros. Co. guarantee it.

How Build Today To Replace the Worn-out Parts of Yesterday?

Each day thinkers use up cells of the Brain.

Each day active workers destroy cells in the nerve centres.

If the food lacks the things Nature demands for rebuilding, Nervous Prostration and Brain-fag result.

Suppose a bricklayer tried to build a wall and the boss furnished brick, sand and water, but left out the lime?

Suppose you eat plenty of albumin and take sufficient water, but neglect food which contains Phosphate of Potash?

Nature cannot rebuild gray matter in nerve centres and brain without phosphate of Potash which binds together albumin and water to make it.

Phosphate of Potash, as grown in the grains by Nature, is more than half the mineral salts in Grape-Nuts.

SMART MILLINERY MODES.

It is rather interesting to note how many feathers are being worn this spring, and that on hats that have come from the most fashionable modistes. Flowers, of course, hold first place in the affections of most women at this season; still, some smart people continue to wear plumed hats all through the year—for all but the most workaday events of life.

Now and again one sees hats in which the rival claims of flowers and feathers are set forth in tempting fashion, but the smartest modistes as a rule are not thus distractingly adorned.

Decidedly original was a Napoleon hat of darkest gray straw, edged on the high upturned brim with emerald green ostrich feathers—the lovely, thick, curly single fronds which both seem and are expensive! Not less charming, though certainly much more extravagant, was a high turban of white tulle with upturned brim of ermine, a wintry trimming which gave a certain amount of solidity to the toque.

At the back, slightly toward the right side, was a big upright bunch of black aiglets.

A snowy lancer feather gave an effective touch to a black ermine straw which was further beautified by a Watteau wreath of tiny pink satin roses and pale mauve violets. Plumes, quills, motifs and what the uninitiated regard as untidy twists of white wool are almost as popular on expensive spring hats as they were on those of velvet.

At the request of The Sentinel, Mrs. C. M. Dawson has permitted the use of extracts from two very interesting letters written home by her daughter, Miss Hadji, who is on her second European visit in company with her aunt, Mrs. James R. Merriweather, and her cousins, James and Jane Merriweather.

One of the letters, written from Sorrento, Italy, is dated March 26.

"And here we are in Sorrento," writes Miss Dawson. "It is just as ideally lovely to me now as I am just wild over it and just can't drink in enough of its beauty. A silver half-moon and the garden at night is a dream from the Arabian Nights. The orange trees are tipped with silver, and the rose are in full bloom, their blush faintly visible in the moonlight. And the soothing dash of the waves, the twinkling of the brilliant necklace which marks Naples, all fairly makes me ache with the beauty of it all. Filth of the Neapolitans."

"We drove from Naples to Sorrento yesterday and had a perfect day for the trip. We left Naples at 9 o'clock and drove through the poor quarters, seeing the most remarkable sights of dirt, filth, squalor and all else that marks the Neapolitan life."

"The Excavations at Herculaneum."

"We reached Herculaneum about 11 o'clock and had a very comprehensive view of that ancient city. The work of excavation has ceased, but the theater is so well dug out that one can get a fairly good idea of its original appearance, especially with the aid of the model which has been made recently. We went through the town, too, and were deeply interested, even more so than before."

Beautiful Sorrento.

"It was 3:30 when we reached here and drove at once to the Hotel Cocumella—this dear old Jesuit monastery, which I love. Our rooms are ideal. Mine is tiny, but it has a broad window opening on the court yard, and I can see the blue sea and several of the towering umbrella palms and the beautiful garden below. We did not stop when we reached here, but went down to the garden, along the broad walk with the orange trees and rose bushes and lovely flowers everywhere. To the sea, where we all stopped in admiration of the glorious view before us. Then I hurried on down to the beach through the rocky caverns which are so weird, to the level of the sea, and how lovely it seemed to be back where the scene was so familiar. I took some pictures and felt like a bottle of champagne when the work is ready to pop off. That evening we watched the sunset. The sun seemed to sink beneath the waves, a fiery red ball, and the wonderful coloring in the sky, rich reds, pale greens and delicate lavenders, formed a beautiful picture. We watched it until the after-glow faded, then, with one more look around the bay, past Naples and Vesuvius—so awe-inspiring in its grandeur—came in to dress."

All our windows are wide open and the air is delightfully balmy. After dinner, a splendid meal of seven courses, the dancers were here and gave us quite a program of dances and singing, very enjoyable and pretty. We then went downstairs, and O, the beauty of the soft night, with the silvery glow of the moonlight! It was like a perfect dream. And lights beginning at Capri, and going on around the bay, was indeed entrancing. I love Sorrento. The beauty here appeals to me in a strange way that I cannot express, only that it seems a part of my very heart and soul.

"But, with all, they do have fleas here, and the little pests won't let you forget their presence."

A Blue Grotto Experience.

"Well, today was a terror. 'Jim' Jane and I went to Capri and the Blue Grotto. The boat was full to the brim, and we got over very nicely with very little rocking. When we got to the grotto a strong sea was running and the little boats bobbed around like corks, so it was almost impossible to get from the steps into the skiff. I nearly choked with laughter watching the people dive from the steamer into the bobbing boats, land in a heap on the floor and sit there all huddled up in a helpless bunch, their hats over their ears or eyes, all so miserable, clutching the sides of the boat like mad, nearly scared to death. After we got into the little boat, the waves were immense and they nearly swamped us as we came nearer the cliff. Then we bumped into another boat and a huge wave slapped me squarely in the face, soaking hat, veil and sleeve. I was like a drowned chicken, but that was only the beginning. We hit the rock, and a wave came clear over us, simply drenching Jane and me until our skirts and feet were soaking wet. Then, as it is necessary to do when the wave carries the boat into the grotto, we lay down in all the water and in a moment were within. It is wonderful. The water seems like blue quicksilver. The huge waves filled up the opening and poured in on us, and our discomfort grew worse, for the waves, pouring in at the hole we were trying to get out of simply poured gallons all over us. It was rather a miserable crowd that got back to the boat."

At Capri.

Writes From Rome.

Miss Dawson writes her next letter from Rome on the 30th of March. Following are extracts from the letter:

"Just see where we are—and tomorrow is Palm Sunday! It seems good to be here in Rome, and it is a very great pleasure to be with hostesses whom I have known before."

At the Monastery, Almagi.

"In writing, I believe it would be best to begin where I left off in my Sorrento letter. From Sorrento we went on to Almagi and had a perfect day, cloudless, warm and with no wind. And such superb scenery! The mountain crags, the wonderful blue of the sea—all is so surprisingly lovely, and we thoroughly enjoyed it. I find that because I am a little older than when I visited these scenes before I am more deeply impressed on this trip and see things with a clearer understanding and a more accurate knowledge. We did not get to Almagi until 2 o'clock, and there had luncheon at the monastery. This is one spot which was not so lovely as when we saw it, for the pergola is perfectly bare, the vines are not even budding as yet, and this does certainly make a difference in the appearance of that monastery. We had dinner there and saw the cloisters and admired the view, and then walked down the pergola and found some violets."

Over Night at LaCava.

"At 4 o'clock we started on again for LaCava. As we drove around the Gulf of Salerno, I had a hard time deciding which was the lovelier—the Bay of Naples or the Bay of Salerno. The picture is that of gently sloping mountains with a noble outline, fading into the water with its wonderful colorings. At LaCava, we found the Hotel Victoria, a house as fascinating as before. That remarkable furniture called Bourbon is manufactured here, and 'Ron' would have gone wild over some of it. We were there over night, and the moonlight in that valley was a dream. LaCava is down in a hollow, with a circle of hills all about it. At night, in the light of the full moon, that valley is a beautiful sight. In the morning, those same hills were draped with fleecy clouds creeping down into the crevices in a most fascinating manner."

At Pompeii.

"That day we went to Pompeii by rail and were favored with perfect weather. At Pompeii we engaged a guide and spent three hours in the unearthly city, and I tell you I know something about it now. I read Baldecor half the night before, and by the time of the end of our visit I found many new impressions of it from my first visit, and this second visit added the polish."

"It is really astonishing how familiar I find all the places I have visited before, and how accurate my memory proves to be."

"We saw the principal streets, the court of justice, basilica and the temples; then the theaters and shops and some of the principal houses, including the houses of the Vetti, where all the paintings and statues, cooking utensils and chests were left just as found. In this house are all the paintings of the Cupids which we know so well. The idea that one gets of this Pompeian house is worth a trip over here alone. It has been roofed recently after the original manner and is quite an exact type. Our guide was well versed in 'The Last Days of Pompeii,' and told me where various scenes took place, the Temple of Isis, and other spots; so the day was a great success. We took a mid of train for Naples than we had expected to get, and found our expected place of entertainment full to overflowing. However, we found accommodations for all."

"On Friday, it was a question where to go—Vesuvius or to Solofaro. We chose the latter. We packed the clothes we do not expect to need and sent our trunks on to London. At 2 o'clock we drove to Lozzuolo, to see Solofaro, and it is a fine sight. A small new crater opened up two months ago, and the mud was boiling and the steam coming out of every crevice in the most 'inferno-like' manner."

A Chance Meeting.

"At Capri we met two ladies. They came to Naples, and on Friday night we got to talking with them, and lo! they were Mosses from Angola, cousins of Mrs. A. T. McDonald. They knew Esther and the Wood family very well. There are six traveling here, the mother, two daughters and three grandchildren. They have already been here twenty months and are now on their way to

PRESIDENT FIRES A NEW BROADSIDE

Taft Devotes Boston Address to Attack on Roosevelt.

IN HIS OWN DEFENSE

Boston, April 26.—President Taft last night cast aside his policy of avoiding personalities in his campaign for re-nomination and devoted his entire speech to an attack upon Colonel Roosevelt and a defense of himself and his administration against charges Colonel Roosevelt recently has made on the stump.

Mr. Taft's speech bristled with counter-charges against his predecessor in the white house. He declared that Mr. Roosevelt had wilfully misrepresented him, had falsely distorted some of his public utterances, had failed to live up to his policy of a square deal, and had violated a solemn promise to the American people not to be a candidate for a third term.

"That promise and his treatment of it," said Mr. Taft, "only throws an informing light on the value that ought now to be attached to any promise of this kind he may make for the future."

Would Make Job Permanent.

Declaring that Mr. Roosevelt "ought not to be selected as a candidate of any party," Mr. Taft said that the former president might now be paving the way, if successful in the present campaign, to remain the chief executive of the nation for as many terms as his natural life would permit.

"If he is necessary now to the government, why not later?" asked the president.

Mr. Taft referred to some of Mr. Roosevelt's charges against him as the "house and vague indictment of one who does not know and who depends only upon second-hand information for his statement."

The president said that his speech last night was one of the most painful duties of his life; that it was in response to an obligation that he owed the republican party which selected him as its candidate, and to the American people who elected him president.

"It grows," he said, "out of a phase of national politics and national life that I believe to be unprecedented in our history. So unusual is the exigency that the ordinary rules of propriety that limit and restrict a president in his public addresses must be laid aside, and the cold, naked truth must be stated in such a way that it shall serve as a warning to the people of the United States."

Takes Up Roosevelt Charges.

One by one, the president took up eleven charges made against him by Colonel Roosevelt and sought to refute them. In two instances he quoted from correspondence between himself and Colonel Roosevelt and said he was prepared to make other letters public if Mr. Roosevelt should desire.

"By excerpts from my speeches Mr. Roosevelt has sought to show that I am one who has announced that I am in favor of an aristocracy of political bosses, and that I am linked with political bosses in seeking my re-nomination. He charges that the patronage of the government is being shamelessly used to secure my re-nomination, and that in the conventions and primaries which have been held fraud and violence have been systematically used to defeat the will of the people and to secure delegates for me. He says that I am not a progressive, but a reactionary; that I was nominated by progressives and after election joined the ranks of those who opposed me for nomination; and he intimates that I have not the spirit of the progressive, or the imagination, or the clear-headed purpose essential to the make-up of such a person. He says that I am a friend of the interests and an upholder of special privilege, and that a vote for me is a vote for the interests, and against the people. He minimizes and flouts the importance of the laws enacted and the executive action taken during my administration.

"If in this contest there were at stake only my own reputation or the satisfaction of my own ambition, I would, without the slightest qualm and without care as to the result, continue my silence under these unjust attacks and unfounded charges unjust and unfounded.

"But I am presented with this difficulty. I represent a cause. I stand for wise progress in governmental affairs and in the improvement of the condition of all the people that the republican party stands for. I am the titular leader of that movement and the substantial and sane legislation of my administration vindicates its existence and continuance. The supporters of this cause look to me to see to it that it is not seriously injured by the unjust, unfounded charges against me, and by the adroit appeals to discontent and class hatred that Mr. Roosevelt is now making to the public. They feel that by such charges and appeals Mr. Roosevelt has clouded the real and critical issues of the campaign and has misled a good many patriotic people of the country to his support, because no one has answered them as they ought to be answered.

Hasn't Given "Square Deal."

"Mr. Roosevelt prides himself on being a true sportsman and he likes to take from the rules and language of sports maxims to be applied to life in general. The maxim which he has exalted above all others, to whom he has given currency the country over, and which he himself in his conduct of life wishes to have it thought he exemplifies, is that 'every man is entitled to a square deal.' I propose to examine the charges he makes against me, and to ask you whether in making them he is giving me a square deal."

In detail Mr. Taft dealt first with the statement by Colonel Roosevelt in his Carnegie hall address, in which the colonel said:

"Mr. Taft fairly defines the issue when he says that our government is, and should be a government of all the people, by a representative part of the people. That is an excellent and moderate description of an oligarchy. It defines our government as a government of all the people by a few of the people."

In reply, Mr. Taft said: "The excerpt which Mr. Roosevelt uses is taken from my speech at Toledo. It is garbled. I did not say this 'should be a government of all the people by a representative part of the people.' I said, 'It is thus apparent that ours is a government of all the people by a representative part of the people, and it is. The context shows clearly what I meant.'"

Says He Garbled It.

"Was it honest, was it fair of Theodore Roosevelt to seize one sentence from a speech, to garble it and then to give it a meaning which he knew from the context it could not bear!"

Mr. Taft next took up what he termed the "unfair" charge that he was in favor of an oligarchy of bosses.

"He (Colonel Roosevelt) says that all the bosses are in my favor and all of them against him. That is not true. By his association with William Flynn, of Pittsburgh, there is being restored to power in that city and in Philadelphia one of the worst municipal bosses. Mr. Roosevelt's chief supporter in Ohio today is Walter Brown, the only boss in full commission in that state, and who is looking forward to state control under Mr. Roosevelt's administration. He charges me with association with Mr. Barnes, of New York, while he is silent as to the support and advice he is receiving from Mr. William Ward, of the same state."

Dragged Crane In.

The president said Mr. Roosevelt recently had dragged in the name of Senator Crane, of Massachusetts in an unfriendly way. He warmly defended Mr. Crane and said that three times Mr. Roosevelt had invited Mr. Crane into his cabinet, and that furthermore Mr. Roosevelt had invited Senator Crane to manage his presidential campaign in 1904. Mr. Taft added:

"But Mr. Crane does not now support Mr. Roosevelt and must be condemned."

"The truth with respect to me is the same as it is with respect to Mr. Roosevelt. When I am running for the presidency I gratefully accept such support as comes to me. Mr. Roosevelt has done so in the past; he is doing so now. I am making no bargain. I am agreeing to no conditions that would embarrass or hamper me in the administration of the government should I be re-elected. I do not say that Mr. Roosevelt has done so or is doing so."

Linked Name With Lorimer.

Mr. Taft charged that Mr. Roosevelt and his supporters, during their recent campaign in Illinois, linked his name with that of Senator Lorimer in such a way as to give the impression that a vote for Taft was a vote for Lorimer.

"I have not seen Mr. Lorimer for two years and have had no communication with or from him. Any influence he may have given in my favor was not because he liked me, but because he felt more bitter toward Mr. Roosevelt. Without further circumstance or knowledge it would have been unfair and unjust for Mr. Roosevelt to desire, he learned that not on me the popular indignation against Senator Lorimer in order to carry Illinois against me; but it was peculiarly unfair in Mr. Roosevelt to do this when he knew what he did know as to my actual attitude toward Senator Lorimer."

Mr. Taft then read a letter he wrote to Colonel Roosevelt January 6, 1911, in which he wanted the movement to oust Senator Lorimer to succeed.

Mr. Taft added that by the telephone conversation and by subsequent correspondence with Mr. Roosevelt which he would not publish, unless Mr. Roosevelt desired, he learned that no such article was contemplated, but Mr. Roosevelt said he would assist in the matter in other ways.

"I have never given Mr. Roosevelt or anyone else the slightest reason to suppose that I had changed my attitude."

Ranking Up the Farmers.

Mr. Taft charged that Mr. Roosevelt was now seeking to take advantage of the supposed feeling among the farmers of the country against reciprocity with Canada. He said he would not object to this, but for the fact that he consulted Colonel Roosevelt ten days before he made the agreement with Canada, and that the latter approved the agreement in the most enthusiastic terms. Mr. Taft quoted a letter from Colonel Roosevelt, dated January 12, 1911, in which the colonel said in part:

"It seems to me that what you propose to do with Canada is admirable from every standpoint. I firmly believe in free trade with Canada, for both economic and political reasons. As you say, labor cost is substantially the same in the two countries, so that you are amply justified by the platform. Whether Canada will accept such reciprocity I do not know, but it is greatly to your credit to make the effort."

Roosevelt Makes Recants.

The president added: "Now, in the exigency of this contest for the nomination, and with the purpose of accentuating the supposed feeling of the farmers against me, he recants his approval of the agreement on the ground that it would not have been a square deal for the farmers, a circumstance which, he intimates, escaped him when he, in a desire to support my administration, had approved the agreement."

Mr. Roosevelt's course on reciprocity is not in accord with the square deal."

President Taft next referred to Mr. Roosevelt's charges that the president had been "receiving stolen goods," and had profited "by the use of dirty instruments to secure delegates."

"No instance," said the president, "has been brought to my attention in which specifications of fraud have been sustained by any evidence whatever. The charges made by Senator Dixon of Kentucky in an hysterical and insulting open letter to me were shown to be wholly without foundation in the Kentucky convention, and by the statement of Senator Deboe."

Mr. Taft said that if there had been fraud in the New York primaries the courts were open to the Roosevelt supporters for redress. They failed, he said, to take advantage of this fact. He inferred from this that the charges of fraud elsewhere likewise had no real foundation.

Use of Federal Patronage.

As to Mr. Roosevelt's charges of the "shameless" use of federal patronage by the president, Mr. Taft said that 70 per cent. of the federal officeholders now in the service were appointees of Mr. Roosevelt, and as a natural result a large percentage of them favored the former president for re-nomination. No man, he said, had been dismissed because he favored Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Taft said Mr. Roosevelt was not only enjoying the support of many federal officeholders, but the patronage of a number of state governors which was being used for him "with business-like manipulation that lacks nothing in effectiveness."

Dealing with Mr. Roosevelt's charges that in his administration Mr. Taft had deserted the progressives and become a reactionary, the president said it was on Mr. Roosevelt's advice that he had his first meeting with Speaker Cannon.

Roosevelt and Payne Bill.

"Has Mr. Roosevelt ever condemned the Payne bill?" he asked. "Does he say he would not have signed it if it had been presented to him under conditions that I had to meet? He has never said that as far as I know. Is it a square deal, therefore, for him to charge me with not being a progressive, when all that I did was to deal with the party as it was in congress and to get as much as I could of the legislation promised out of that party, torn as it was by faction?"

Mr. Taft referred to the strengthening of the interstate commerce act. Certain amendments suggested by the administration were defeated. These amendments Mr. Roosevelt had denounced as vicious. As a matter of fact, Mr. Taft said, all the things contained in these amendments "had been recommended by Mr. Roosevelt and had been promised in the platform of the republican party."

Defended Commerce Court.

Mr. Taft warmly defended the commerce court, saying it had reduced judicial delays from two years to six months. If it exceeded its jurisdiction or made a wrong decision he said the supreme court was at hand to remedy it.

Taking up Mr. Roosevelt's anti-trust record, Mr. Taft said he had warmly approved it on the stump for the former president. He said Mr. Roosevelt had invited the proceedings against the Standard Oil and the American Tobacco company, and that they had been carried to a successful conclusion in the supreme court under the present administration.

Now Find Mr. Roosevelt Coming.

Mr. Taft said, denouncing the anti-trust law and denouncing prosecutions under it. He says that the decree in the Standard Oil case is ineffective, and that my administration is to be condemned because the decree was confirmed in the supreme court. The truth is that the decree was finally entered and enforced was drawn exactly as Mr. Roosevelt's attorney general, in the bill which by direction of Mr. Roosevelt he filed against the Standard Oil company, had asked that it be drawn.

One of the Real Reasons.

"One of the real reasons why Mr. Roosevelt might not be selected as a candidate of any party is the natural distrust that the whole business community will have in respect to the measures which Mr. Roosevelt will propose in order to

THE JOYS AND SORROWS OF MR. COMMUTE

TEAMS PREPARED FOR HARD FIGHT

Fort Wayne and Dayton Will Battle for the Last Game.

LUCK IS AGAINST 'EM

[Special to The Sentinel.] Dayton, O., April 25.—Up to noon today the weather did not look very favorable for a game during the afternoon, but both manager Frank Shaugnessy, of the Fort Wayne club, and Puncy Knoll, of the veteran squad were anxious to play the rubber of the series and each prepared to make a hard fight for the game. Although neither of the men holds a title that counts in this country they are probably the best fighters at 135 pounds and the promoters have advertised that the winner will be the champion in this class.

Although neither of the men holds a title that counts in this country they are probably the best fighters at 135 pounds and the promoters have advertised that the winner will be the champion in this class. All of the high-priced seats offered for sale have been taken and a big crowd is expected when the battle opens. Sam Austin was finally chosen as referee and it is believed he will have little trouble, as both men are old at the game. Although not so showy as his rival, Wells is extremely clever, while McFarland might be compared to Abe Attell when the latter was at his best. Wells holds the Lord Lonsdale diamond belt emblematic of the lightweight championship of Great Britain, but no matter what the outcome of this meeting may be he will still hold the belt which must be fought for in England. It is a matter of opinion which side has made the better bargain. McFarland is taking on chances, being guaranteed $10,000. Wells will receive 50 per cent of the gate after McFarland's end has been deducted, and the Englishman will also receive 50 per cent of the moving picture money.

The doors will open at 7 o'clock, and at that time the $1 and $2 seats will be placed on sale. Then there will be two preliminaries, the first being carded for 8:40 o'clock, between Joe Shears of England and Willie Chandler of the Boys' club of New York. They will weigh 122 pounds and conditions call for six rounds.

Following there will come the semi-final bout of ten rounds at 133 pounds between Steve Kennedy of Boston, and Charles "Twin" Miller, of Philadelphia. The star bout of ten rounds will be put on at 10 o'clock. It is expected that Sam Austin's work as referee will be comparatively light, as both men know the rules and are regarded as fair fighters.

The reports that the fight will not be held at this time are without foundation. After concluding his workout in the Mott Haven Athletic club, Billy Gibson led him over to the scales, and the position which the index stopped at is unmistakable evidence that McFarland will be able to meet the conditions of the contract he made for his appearance with Wells.

Any man with an eye for the physical must admit the efficiency of McFarland as a fighting unit. The curve of the muscles of his legs, the easy buoyancy of his every motion, the light of reserve strength in his eye, and last, but not least, the heavy contour of the McFarland head, all betoken a man in the prime of health and strength. As the Chicagoan went through a series of warm-ups with Eddie McManis, Sallor Stevens, Special Delivery Hirsch and Steve Kennedy, his fitness stood out so clearly that even a floorwalker in a Fifth Avenue military establishment would have been willing to wager his weekly salary on McFarland's ability to give any man of his weight a fight to a finish.

OUR NAVY MAKES STEPS FORWARD

Meyer Says It's 1,200 Times Better Now Than in 1898 War.

NAVY YARDS WEAK

New York, April 26.—Secretary of the Navy Meyer told the Efficiency society at its recent banquet how careful study in the navy had multiplied the efficiency of the American war craft at least 1,200 times since the Spanish war.

The system followed, according to the secretary, was practice and encouragement. Bounties are paid to the men who show especial aptitude for work, and promotion is certain. The greatest improvement has been made in gunnery and the weak point of the navy administration, as Secretary Meyer saw it, is in the maintenance of so many navy yards and the lack of funds to place them on the strict military basis.

The Santiago victory showed the navy heads the alarming weakness of the American navy in gunnery, and beginning at that time each step of firing a gun was carefully watched and timed, and effort was made at once to improve it. First came the selection of men with special aptitude for certain work; sight setters, plug men and loaders were chosen carefully and drilled slowly until letter perfect in their movements, and then speed was added. Each time they performed the functions assigned to them they were required to do it a little quicker, until what is regarded as a human minimum has been attained.

Sudden Practice Required. Also "smooth sea" target practices became only an incident in the work, for practice was required at unexpected and frequent intervals, in storms, rough sea, fog and snowfall. The result is that the "smooth sea" ship has disappeared and every vessel in the navy is ready for the fray in any weather and is guaranteed to give a good account of itself.

In this practice casualties have been simulated and unexpected difficulties have been thrown in the way of the men by officers controlling the fire. As to the battle mimicry, Secretary Meyer said:

"In the competitive battle firing conditions are made just as severe as those that would obtain in actual action. The firing vessel has no knowledge of the course, speed and distance of the target vessel, which she is to shoot. She steams toward it at her best speed and opens fire at whatever range she chooses; but the value of hitting at long ranges is vitally impressed on her by the amount that is added to or subtracted from her score for the shots that at beyond 12,000 yards or under that mark. The whole firing is over in four minutes and the ship has no other chance to make good if she fails in this. No excuses are accepted for failure of guns to fire, for breakdowns of any character, or for any faults of personnel or material.

1,200 Times Better in Gunnery.

"As evidence of the value of competition in gunnery a comparison is made with the fighting efficiency of the vessels during the Spanish-American war and at present. The percentage of hits in 1898 was 3 1/2 with the large guns firing about once in five minutes at short range. The percentage of hits in the recent firing at the San Marcos was 83 1-3, the range being 10,000 yards, and the present rate of firing a single 12-inch gun being about ten shots in five minutes. This rather overestimates the work at Santiago and underestimates the work today. A roughly drawn comparison shows that we are about 1,200 times better in gunnery efficiency than we were at Santiago.

"The policy now for the competitive training for battle is that it shall begin on the date of commission, and no excuses are accepted for being unprepared should the department at any time require the ships to fire at a day's notice."

As to the navy yards, the secretary said: "The problem which will have to be met when the canal is completed and the fleet is spending six months of the year on the Pacific ocean is the question of the consolidation of the navy yards. We are at present embarrassed by a superfluous number of navy yards, distributed along the Atlantic coast from Maine to Louisiana. This calls for a vast amount of money to be expended for maintenance, absolutely necessary to meet the actual requirements of the fleet. But nothing can be accomplished in the abolition of needless navy yards until public sentiment is aroused to the necessity of it and until it becomes so evident that local interests will be overcome by public interest in meeting this question on broad, patriotic business principles."

Praises Naval Advisory Board. Secretary Meyer also praised very highly the work accomplished by the "naval advisory board," installed by him, composed of expert, experienced naval officers who advise and approve plans to be worked out in practice and who criticize the results of the working out of these plans.

"The board," he said, "was modeled after the staff formation of all great military powers and brought to the highest degree of efficiency in the German army."

PRESS ASKS CONGRESS TO MAKE VESSELS SAFE

Regulate Ocean Traffic. Philadelphia Press: "There is no doubt that the ocean steamship business, left heretofore mainly for competition and self-interest to regulate, will be put under the control of law."

Recognize Danger. Baltimore News: "The one certain thing is that the governments of Europe and this country will institute vigorous inquiries into the equipment of ships and will no longer place reliance upon the assurance of experts that the craft of man can yet build boats that the mighty danger of the sea cannot overwhelm."

Enforce Laws. Washington Herald: "It is said the marine laws of the United States are much stricter regarding safety appliances than those of Great Britain. Congress has the power to enforce her own statutes on all ships reaching our ports and should do so without delay."

Abandon North Route. Philadelphia Record: "Legislation on both sides of the Atlantic, compelling ocean steamships to provide adequate life saving appliances, will fall far short of the requirements of the situation unless it be supplemented by regulations forbidding transatlantic passage over the dangerous northern route."

Speed vs. Safety. Cleveland News: "By all precedent the disaster should be followed by practical reforms, perhaps radical changes, in steam navigation. But the changes seem good that the greatest marine disaster in history will not greatly modify the modern custom of rushing across the Atlantic with more regard for speed than for safety."

Patrol Atlantic Graveyard. Chicago Record-Herald: "The best constructive suggestion we have seen is found in the petition circulated at the Chicago Board of Trade asking the government to patrol the dangerous zones of navigation—especially the so-called Atlantic graveyard—with war vessels so equipped as to give timely warning as well as prompt aid to ships in distress."

Public Opinion Aroused. Brooklyn Daily Eagle: "Public opinion in Europe and America is demanding that laws for safety at sea shall be made what they should be and that such as are what they should not be shall be repealed. That is the one demand that has significance in it and carries promise in it."

Looks to Congress. Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: "The congress of the United States has power to regulate the commerce of our ports. It can make laws for safety and has ample power to enforce them. The people of the United States are not looking to the English Board of Trade nor to the Hague at the present moment, but to Washington, to their own national legislature now in session."

Philadelphia Press: "Congress should act in the matter with decision, but the steamship companies, if they are wise, will act first and at once and dismiss the theory that any vessel is unsinkable and be prepared at all times to take off every soul on board a sinking ship."

MOVE TO RELEASE INDIAN CAPTIVES

Apache Braves Now Held at Fort Sill as War Prisoners.

GAVE UP IN 1886

Lawton, Okla., April 24.—An effort is being made to secure the release of the only prisoners of war now held in this country, the 257 Apache Indians—135 men and 110 women—held at Fort Sill. They are the remaining members and descendants of the band which fought under old Chief Geronimo in the early eighties. The matter is now before congress and the war department, and favorable action is expected. It is probable, however, that if they are freed they will be requested to join their tribesmen in New Mexico.

committed acts of depredation, and only six of these survive. Nearly 100 of the Apaches of Fort Sill are under forty years of age; that means that the oldest of them was not more than fourteen years of age at the time of the surrender. Several have been born since and have been brought up in a state of captivity. For a long time they have been allowed the freedom of the fort.

moved to Mount Vernon barracks in Alabama. Here the climate disagreed with them, and in 1894 they were transferred to Fort Sill, where those of them who have not gone to the "happy hunting grounds" have remained ever since.

In 1882 Geronimo and his band joined forces with other Apaches in a series of raids along the border. They were discontented because the government had failed to protect their irrigation for their farms, thereby threatening their crops. Settlers had been allowed to use great quantities of water on the upper Gila. There was an investigation by a grand jury, and its findings resulted in a charge of mismanagement of Indian affairs at San Carlos being laid against the civil authorities.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

THE HEADLIGHT CONTROVERSY

Judge Anderson Sustains the Decision in Favor of Railroads.

SMASH UP IN THE WABASH YARDS
Wind Starts Two Cars Down Incline and They Strike a Train.

The report of Noble C. Butler, special master in chancery in the hearing of the petition of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to set aside an order of the railroad commission to compel all companies to equip all their engines, except switch engines, with headlights of not less than 1,500 candle power, was sustained by Judge A. B. Anderson, of the federal court.

The report of the master held that the order issued by the commission required the railroad to equip all engines with headlights of not less than 1,500 candle power, and that the order was valid and that the commission had the power under it to issue a proper order relating to headlights.

The railroad company contended that the order was too vague and indefinite to be enforced, and asserted among other things that it did not explain at what distance from the light the measurement of its power was to be made. The company also contended the right of the commission to issue an order of that nature.

WRECK IN WABASH YARDS.
Runaway Cars Crash Into Side of Freight Train.

After Conductor Hartley and Engineer Thayer had set out two or three cars from Wabash train, No. 63, just east of Fairfield avenue, at 5 o'clock this morning, backed the engine up, hooked onto the train and started west, the two cars sat out on their own hook and crashed into the side of the train down at the coal docks. One of the cars was loaded with fertilizer and the other with cedar posts and each was badly damaged. The car inspectors and section men handled the wreckage without calling for the steam derrick and traffic on the line was not interrupted. The heavy wind was responsible for the accident, it starting the cars down the grade.

ROCK ISLAND'S ROSTER.
W. H. Moore is Elected Chairman of Board.

W. H. Moore has been elected chairman of the executive committee of the Rock Island, vice Robert Walker, resigned. Mr. Walker has also resigned as general counsel to become a member of the firm of White & Case, which is to act as eastern counsel for the Rock Island system. Mr. Walker retains his place in the railway company's board. Outside of emphasizing the Rock Island control of the road there was no significance to today's changes.

C. Dillard has been elected vice president and general counsel, with headquarters in Chicago. Edward S. Moore has been elected president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, with headquarters at Chicago. John J. Quinn has been elected president of the Rock Island department, has been elected president of the Rock Island company, of New Jersey, with headquarters in New York.

These elections complete the changes, making Chicago the operating headquarters of the Rock Island system, with H. U. Mudge president, and all operating officers of the railway company located there, and New York the official headquarters, with W. H. Moore, chairman of the executive committee, and Daniel G. Reid, chairman of the board of directors of the railway company.

The company's New York officers will be in the new Bankers' Trust building.

MAY LOSE AN EYE.
Chris Gleisman Victim of Distressing Accident.

Christian Gleisman, a machinist in the Wabash shop, was the victim of a distressing accident this morning. While at work a piece of steel flew in his eye and cut the ball of the optic badly. He was attended by the company's surgeon, Dr. C. E. Kaas, and later sent to DeCaen, Ill., to receive treatment from the company's oculist. The wound is a bad one and may result in loss of sight to the eye.

MAY BE PERMANENT INJURY.
Charles W. Spangler the Victim of Wreck.

Charles W. Spangler, Nickel Plate freight conductor, who, with Conductor Charles F. Goodyear, was severely injured in a rear end collision at Fostoria, Ohio, six or eight months ago, has not recovered sufficiently to permit him to return to work. In fact, it is feared that one of his shoulders is permanently crippled. Mr. Goodyear has been at work for a month or more, his injuries being of a less serious character.

INVENTORY TOMORROW.
Pennsylvania Shop Clerks to Take Up Big Task.

The semi-annual inventory at the Pennsylvania shops will commence tomorrow morning and the clerks and a number of the department foremen and attendants will be busy with it until Sunday night. Usually the shops close when this work commences, but up to the noon hour today no instructions of that kind had been issued and they may run until noon tomorrow.

CASHDOLLAR HURT.
Electrician and Ball Manager Has Bad Fall.

R. C. Cashdollar, a lineman at the Fort Wayne Electric works, had one of his thumbs dislocated and a shoulder badly bruised yesterday, when he fell while engaged in wiring the new factory building. Mr. Cashdollar is the manager of the Electro-Technic shop, a member of the Electro-Technic league team, but does not play in the games and his injuries will not cripple that team.

PAINTERS HAVE MEETING.
The Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators' union held a meeting Wednesday night at which the business affairs of government, referred to the unions by the Federation of Labor came in for a share of attention. It was finally laid aside until T. F. Thome, the father of the movement, and J. W. Close, chairman of the Federation committee, could address the union and explain the proposition more fully. A vote on the matter will be taken after these gentlemen have been heard. The painters were nearly unanimous for a big parade on Labor Day, as indicated by the vote taken Wednesday night. Seventeen members were taken into the union and a number of applications were acted upon. William C. Shea, the organizer, who was here looking after some matters growing out of the recent wage controversy, left yesterday for Louisville, his home city.

COAL DOCKS UPSET.
Trainmen brought news to the city this morning of a terrific wind storm along the Wabash road west of Danville last night. At Danville, about forty miles from Danville, the company's coal docks were upset by the heavy wind, the telegraph and telephone poles were prostrated, some cars were blown over and houses unroofed. Some of the wreckage was carried on the railway tracks and trains were delayed until it could be removed. The strong "quarantined" wind against trains made it impossible for the engineers to maintain schedule time and all trains were late in reaching terminals.

MOVING THE TOOL ROOM.
The new tool room erected in the southeast corner of the old main factory building of the Fort Wayne Electric works is finished and Tony Rose and John Peters, who have charge of the tool room, are busy moving into it today. When the new building has been equipped and the old one remodelled there will be several tool rooms in the plant, each carrying out such tools, supplies as are used in the particular department it is connected with.

GOING BACK TO ITALY.
W. Ciram and S. Murski, car repairmen at the east shops of the Pennsylvania, resigned today. They are Italians who have been in this country several years and by means of industry and economy have accumulated what they consider a fortune. They will go to New York tomorrow and sail thence to Italy some time next week. J. Levin, a Poleander, also resigned a position at the shops, but he will remain in the city.

TRAIN LOAD OF FARM MACHINERY
A train of twenty-five steel flat cars, loaded with threshing machinery and other farm machinery, left the Fort Wayne shops at Richmond yesterday, over the Chesapeake and Ohio road. This entire consignment is for export and it will go east by water next week and thence to France, Germany and England.

SECRECY CAUSE OF UNHAPPINESS

Woman Says Engagements
Not of Public Record
Should Be Void.

PARENTS CARELESS

New York, April 24.—As a means of lessening ill-advised marriages, publicity of intention through publicly recorded engagement licenses is being advocated. Mrs. Harriette M. Johnston Wood, lawyer, says that such an arrangement would be a good idea, and, too, that it would aid in preventing various social evils.

"Not for a moment would I put a restraint on the young folks," said Mrs. Wood. "It is only natural that they should want to become engaged, and married, and corner all the romance in life that comes their way. Secret engagements followed by a secret marriage too often lead to unhappiness and disruption of the home. To be engaged is fascinating to young girls and many an engagement is made that is broken within a short time, then another is entered into, and by the time a girl has worn the rings of half a dozen different young men, the novelty is gone forever.

Some Should Be Broken. "I do not say that it is not best that many of these engagements are broken off, for if two people can't agree before marriage what can they expect later? This is preventable if engagements are made a matter of deeper consideration in the first place. When a matter involves two persons going to a bureau and taking out a document of license they are going to reflect a little longer and be a little more certain of their real minds.

"In a large city like New York many parents have difficulty in keeping track of their girls. There are many marriages that if prevented would save a great deal of suffering and would not be made if the parents knew of the engagement in time to bring a restraining influence to bear. In cases of girls not of the age of discretion it should be necessary to obtain the consent of the parents or guardians. In the present day the parent seems a secondary consideration.

"Engagements are entered into every day and marriages made between persons absolutely unfit for married life. Health, physical and mental conditions are not taken into consideration, and marriages made between couples mentally deficient and physically below the standard only tend toward the procreation of the mentally deficient and physically weak. If this were taken in time, at the time of the engagement, and a record was kept of whether or not the license had been granted or refused, and on what basis, when it came to the marriage the last step would be prevented and a coming generation saved from much trouble.

Blow to Breach of Promise Suits. "Another thing. Many of the suits for breach of promise that are brought on flimsy evidence would be stopped, for if the engagement license was not taken out and it could not be proved by a matter of record that the proposal was made and accepted, the case would assume a different aspect. This would be a protection to both man and woman against such suits unjustly and spitefully brought.

"In many instances I believe that bigamy could be prevented by the necessity of securing such a permit for engagement. Many men who commit this crime marry under their own name and in the same city in which their legal wife resides. If this man's name was on the register of engagements and he attempted to take out another license, then he could be punished for perjury at any rate and the marriage to the innocent girl stopped.

"With the Hebrew race engagements are announced, the parents are not kept in ignorance of these affairs to the peril of their children, the engagement is considered a really serious matter, not an affair of such little importance that with the change of a fancy it may be utterly disregarded."

Marry First, Think Afterward.

"Beyond a doubt," said Mrs. Macdonald Valesh, editor of the American Club Woman and prominent in club circles, "a great many heartbreaks would be spared if the idea of the engagement license were carried out. Fewer rash promises would be made, but it would be better to have fewer but happier marriages. The trouble with numbers of the young people is that they marry first and then stop to think afterward. If they were compelled to do a little more thinking in the beginning they might stay married for a few more years after the ceremony had been performed.

"I do not believe in secret marriages. Those that cannot be made openly and above board are usually of unhappy origin and turn out badly. Beyond a doubt, as Mrs. Wood says, a great deal of bigamy could be prevented, for it would be practically impossible for a man to marry a second or third wife under his own name, as these persons frequently do, if the fact of his engagement were published at the time it was made. Such notices are pretty certain to come to the attention of those interested in the person of whom they are printed.

"The idea is an excellent one from many points of view, and in a city where people can do nearly as they please without being found out for a very long time, at any rate, I believe it would be of great good."

"There are by far too many hasty marriages being made," said Dr. Oscar Laywood, pastor of the Baptist Church of the Covenant, when asked what he thought of a law making it necessary for couples contemplating matrimony to secure an engagement license. "I should say that such a license should be obtained from three to six months before the time they are obtained. This would afford an opportunity to the couples for reflection if the engagement had been hastily made, and might save a great many families from future trouble."

WHY HE WAS LATE.

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs." Sold by all dealers.

Nigeria a Country Where Everyone is Happy and a Few Weeks of Labor Suffice for Year.

Zingeru, Nigeria.—The Ekoi of extreme Nigeria on the equator, should be, and probably are, writes P. A. ings before they grasp the importance of fresh air and the simplest sanitary measures for the health of their little ones.

They have curious beliefs as to the advent and death of their babes. One charming superstition forbids all quarreling in a house where there are little children. The latter, so they say, love sweet words, kind looks and gentle voices, and if these are not to be found in the family into which they have reincarnated, they will close their eyes and forsake the earth till a chance offers to return again amid less quarrelsome surroundings.

At the new year, and on all great festivals, the chief "societies" of men, women and children come up to the station to give a series of dances. To the Ekoi dancing is one of the main occupations of life. With them the dance provides an outlet both for the

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

By Common Garden Sage, a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to the hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days, on account of soiling quickly. This objection has been overcome, and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair, but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Use it and see for yourself how quickly dandruff goes and gray hairs vanish.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agent Meyer Bros., Four Drug Stores.

dramatic instinct and for religious fervor.

In the whole country there are no open spaces, save those which have been cleared as sites for villages or farms. The Ekoi spend their whole lives in the twilight of the beautiful, mysterious bush, peopled to their fancy not by wild animals alone, of which they have no fear, but by werelopards and all kinds of terrible half-human shapes, and by the giant of trees, rocks and rivers. Here more truly even than in old Greece the terror of Pan is everywhere.

One hears from certain sources of the hardships entailed on the natives in the making of the splendid roads, by means of which the British administration is opening up their tropical and luxuriant "bush" district. No one, however, is quicker than the natives themselves to see the advantages to be gained from such improved means of communication, whether as regards personal safety or trading facilities. On several occasions towns have offered, of their own free will, to do more than had been asked of them. In some cases they have even made a new piece of road on their own initiative as a surprise for my next visit to their part of the country.

NO UNIFORMITY FOR OUR WOMEN

Meant to Be Pretty and Won't Have Dresses
Made Alike.

MEN'S GARB HIDEOUS

Chicago, April 26.—An icy glare, a disdainful shrug and a suggestion that man's uniformity of garb is "sufficiently hideous for all creation"—that is the composite answer of Chicago women to the suggestion that they adopt a universal style.

The women, thank you, will have none of it. And if anyone attempts to foist such a proposition upon them—just such a plan was suggested at a meeting of the Chicago Dressmakers' club—they are going to laugh at its absurdity and run and buy all the fol-de-rols and trinkets of personal adornment they can think of, just for spite.

Insist on Being Pretty.

Chicago women do not take kindly to the uniform style proposal of Miss Kate O'Connor, of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, nor to the similar suggestion of Dr. Cornelia De Bey. They say they are meant to be pretty; they are going to be pretty, and they just will be pretty, even though it takes all the art of women to make them so. As for the expense end of it, why, that is all bosh anyway.

Mrs. Charles E. Merriam, wife of one of Chicago's former aldermen, is the woman who laughs at the idea that the fairer sex really has to spend exorbitant sums of money upon gowns. With a woman lawyer and a woman physician she hurled defiance at the proposers of "such an absurd idea."

Man's Uniformity Hideous.
"Man's uniformity has a hideous sameness," said Mrs. Merriam. "You know, I just hate to see my husband in evening clothes. Women must portray their individuality in their dress and the idea of any kind of uniform is too absurd for consideration."

"Women have been done an injustice. I don't believe that the ones who do things, those who are interested in any good work, chase after styles and fashions. They try to dress attractively and in a general way follow the styles, but they are not slaves to fashion. They do not have to have expensive gowns to be attractive."

WALLS OF CHINESE CITIES

Immense Structures to Be Demolished to Make Way for Modern Improvements.

Shanghai, China.—The decision to demolish the ancient wall surrounding Shanghai city is an interesting sign of the times as well as the preliminary to an ambitious scheme of development.

Scores of coolies were at work, says the North China Daily News, with pick and shovel on that portion of the city rampart which faces the street leading to the old yamen. The Fort on the Great Wall.

Wall itself is several times wider than the alleyways along which pedestrians and rickshaws make their devious and difficult way in that part of the city. The space acquired by the removal of the wall should therefore, if used to best advantage, be of considerable value.

It appears to have been suddenly discovered that the wall is useless as a means of defense and that it is an ugly impediment to the development and improvement of the native quarters. The work was put in hand immediately the order went forth from the town hall works department that it was to be executed without fail.

The owners and inhabitants of stables on the wall have been ordered to remove these, and any fences, material, etc., which would impede the progress of the work. An outcry might have been expected, since the scheme had been strongly opposed, but the order has been quietly accepted. In fact very little interest seems to have been aroused by the work, even though it inaugurates a striking change.

Two of the principal gates in the city wall of Hangchow have been removed. At Canton the republican government has ordered an investigation as to the population and the number of houses along the wall inside and outside the city. The officials deputed to the work are to report in a month, submitting a list of the houses and residents, together with a scheme for the demolition of the entire city wall.

Men Who Helped to Make America

In his verses "On the Prospects of Planting Arts and Learning in America," George Berkeley wrote the famous line, "Westward the course of empire takes its way," and he himself took that westward way and spent seven years in this country, where he gave a mighty impetus to the intellectual life of America.

George Berkeley was born at Killybegs, Ireland, March 12, 1685, and became one of the foremost philosophers and prelates of his time. He was educated in Trinity College, Dublin, and in 1721 was appointed chaplain to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Before he was twenty years old he had gained fame as a writer.

It was his "Theory of Vision," published in 1709, for which he is particularly famous. This work was the foundation of the modern psycho-psychological investigation tion of the subject. His metaphysical views were characterized by extreme subjective idealism.

Soon after his promotion, in 1724, to the deanery of Derry he published a work called "Proposals for the Conversion of the American Savages to Christianity by the Establishment of a College in the Bermuda Islands." Money was raised by subscription, and Berkeley resigned his post and set sail for America with several people of similar mind to establish his college, of which he was to be the first president.

He landed in Newport, only to find that the plans had miscarried. The assistance of Parliament, which had been promised, was not forthcoming. Berkeley, undaunted, remained here for seven years, spending nearly all of his fortune in the vain attempt to carry out his scheme.

Upon his return to the Old World he wrote numerous philosophical, religious and politico-economical works. He died at Oxford, January 14, 1753.

WILL TONE UP THE STOMACH AND STRENGTHEN THE NERVES

The stomach of the American people is degenerating, caused by over-eating, lack of exercise and neglect of health laws. We stuff our bodies with all kinds of food and all the food we can eat, fail to take sufficient exercise, eat too hastily and without proper discrimination as to diet. Then again, women eat too much candy and sweetmeats. This is bad for the welfare of the individual, but even more so to the community, because of its prevalence.

Such a diet becomes a habit and an abnormal craving is created. Taken with irregular hours of sleep—too little sleep one day and too much the next—the stomach gets out of order and the entire nervous system is shattered. We see this on every hand every day. It is a growing menace to the physical prosperity of the nation.

Our forefathers lived simple lives. They ate sparingly of plain food, worked hard and slept soundly. They were strong men and they did big things. If we are to keep up to their standard and resist invasions of modern life, we must get back to sound, healthy living.

If you feel sick, tired, run down, have a bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, feel distressed after eating and have frequent headaches, your stomach is out of order.

Cooper's New Discovery will tone up the stomach, aid in the digestion of food and strengthen the nervous system. It will also regulate your bowels, relieve you of constipation and restore your energy, ambition and appetite. S.S.S. NATURE'S TONIC

The very great majority of persons need a tonic in the Spring or early Summer. The system undergoes a change at this season and the entire physical machinery is disturbed. The general bodily weakness, a tired, worn-out feeling, fickle appetite, poor digestion, a half sick feeling and a general run-down condition of the system, show that the blood is weak or anemic, and a blood purifying tonic is needed to build up the deranged system and enrich the blood.

The use of S.S.S. at this time may save you from a long spell of sickness, and it will certainly prepare you for the long, hot Summer. Many people have put off using a tonic until the system became so weakened and depleted it could not successfully throw off disease germs, and have paid for the neglect with a spell of fever, malaria or some other debilitating sickness. S.S.S. is Nature's ideal tonic. It is a composition of the extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks which science and experience have proven are best fitted for a tonic to the human system. It contains no minerals of any kind and is therefore perfectly safe for persons of any age. S.S.S. tones up the stomach and digestion, rids the system of that tired, worn-out feeling, and imparts vigor and strength to every part of the body. It purifies and enriches the blood, stimulates the secreting and excreting members to better action, quiets the over-strained nerves, and makes one feel better in every way.

STATE LEASES TWO RIVER BEDS

Oklahoma Stirred — Says Its Sand and Gravel Monopoly.

PUBLIC IS INDIGNANT

Muskogee, Okla., April 26.—There is much astonishment in Oklahoma over the giving of a lease on all the sand and gravel rights in the beds of the Arkansas and Grand rivers to the Builders' Sand and Gravel company of Oklahoma City, by the state school land commission, of which Gov. Lee Cruise is a member.

The lease is in effect a monopoly upon this valuable building material. An interesting fact is that A. C. Cruise, brother of Governor Lee Cruise; Judge C. B. Stuart, variously employed as a special attorney by the state administration, and W. A. Leebetter, lately general counsel for the Waters-Pierce Oil company, and employed as special attorney by the Oklahoma state banking board, in connection with the failure of the Columbia Bank and Trust Co., are the principal stockholders in this sand and gravel company. Other lawyers, associates of these three men, are members.

The conditions of the lease are unusual, covering the entire bed of the Arkansas river in Oklahoma, and the bed of Grand river for a distance upstream ten miles from its mouth. These two rivers for many years have been the principal source of supply for sand and gravel for building purposes not only in Eastern Oklahoma, but also for a large territory in the southwest. Costly dredging plants are installed under private ownership in the rivers at Tulsa, Muskogee, and hundreds of carloads of sand and gravel daily shipped to market. The supply seemingly was inexhaustible, and the operators paid nothing for their raw material.

State to Get a Royalty.

The lease grants to the Builders' company exclusive rights to the sand and gravel, in exchange for a royalty to the state of 3 1/2 cents a cubic yard on all sand and 2 1/2 cents a cubic yard on all gravel that may be sold. There is a further concession by which the Builders' company, without cost to the state, is to establish in court the state's legal ownership to the sand and gravel in these river beds, and in addition is to recover from private operating companies the value of all sand and gravel taken from these rivers since statehood. In payment for this latter service the Builders' company is to receive a fee of 25 per cent. of all moneys recovered. If the company should win in these suits it is believed that its compensation would amount to several hundred thousand dollars.

At the time the lease was granted the secretary of state, Benjamin Harrison, proposed that the lease should be subject to competitive bidding after the matter had been advertised legally, and that the state receive a royalty of 12 1/2 per cent. of the gross output. This proposal was rejected, and the least granted without being advertised.

The grant has aroused indignation in Eastern Oklahoma, especially at Muskogee and Tulsa. It is understood the Builders' company is to levy a bonus of 10 cents a cubic yard on all sand and gravel taken from these rivers, which would leave the company a profit of 7 1/2 cents a yard on sand and 6 1/2 cents a yard on gravel. It is said to be the purpose of the Builders' company to control the gravel and sand beds worked by private companies; to designate the territory in which each gravel company shall sell; and to dictate to all gravel companies the price that shall be charged for sand and gravel.

The operating companies are willing to pay the proposed royalty to the state, but object to paying an additional royalty to the Builders' company, and running the risk of having the price raised, thereby increasing the cost of building enterprises.

The state school land commission transacts all business relating to the leasing and sale of the school lands, as it controls the leasing and operation of the state's oil lands.

Indignation Meeting Held.

Public indignation meetings are being held here and at Tulsa, protesting against the lease to the Builders' company and with a view of carrying the matter into the courts. At a recent public meeting of Muskogee business men, Irwin Donovan said: "This matter has reached a stage now when we may as well call a spade a spade and a trick a trick. We should tell the whole clique from the governor down that unless this lease is set aside we will have them impeached and thrown out of office."

Tams Bixby, former chairman of the Dawes commission to the Five Civilized Tribes and a heavy property owner in Muskogee, said: "A plan which will make J. Pierpont Morgan turn green with envy, and which will make him look like a beginner in the monopoly game, is this of the state and a few political lawyers."

LOCKED ANTLERS IN GLACIER

Fatal Fight Between Two Deer Believed to Have Occurred Centuries Ago.

Portland, Ore.—Mute evidence of a mortal combat that may have occurred centuries ago was revealed to J. K. Magnusson, a timber cruiser on the slopes of Mount Baker.

Lying in the lower edge of Roosevelt glacier were the crumbling bones of a buck deer of more than ordinary size. Digging down into the ice, the cruiser uncovered the remains of a second animal, the body in an excellent state of preservation. The antlers of the animals were tightly interlocked, showing that the deer had died in battle.

From the position of the skeleton and body in the glacier Magnusson is of the opinion that they had been carried a long distance down the mountain side. As the glacier flows only four or five inches a day, the battle of the bucks may have occurred centuries ago.

MODEL IN A DOUBLE SENSE

One Quality in Wax Figure Which Convinced Mr. Jones She Would Make a Good Wife.

Mr. Jones came home at an unusually late hour the other night, and was surprised to see Mrs. Jones sitting up for him below stairs with no other light than that of the gas lamp which faced the door to keep her company.

"M-M-Marie," he said, huskily, "you shouldn't sit up 'till late when I'm out on business."

As Mrs. Jones did not answer him, he continued, in an alarmed voice: "Shorry, m'dear, but it's last time—tell you I'm sorry—won't shake up to me?"

At this moment Mrs. Jones called from above stairs:

"Mr. Jones, to whom are you talking at this hour of the night?"

"Thash what I'd like to know m-m-myself," stammered Jones.

Mrs. Jones hastened downstairs, lamp in hand. When she saw the situation, she laughed, in spite of being very angry.

"It's the model," she said. "The model I bought today to fit my dresses on!"

"Yes, thash so," said Jones, tipsily. "Model woman—didn't talk back. Make some fellow good wife."

HAPPY THO' MARRIED?

There are unhappy married lives, but a large percentage of these unhappy homes are due to the illness of the wife, mother or daughter. The feelings of nervousness, the befogged mind, the ill-temper, the pale and wrinkled face, hollow and circled eyes, result most often from these disorders peculiar to women. For the woman to be happy and good-looking she must naturally have good health. Dragging-down feelings, hysteria, hot-flashes or constantly returning pains and aches—are too great a drain upon a woman's vitality and strength. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health by regulating and correcting the local disorders which are generally responsible for the above distressing symptoms.

Mrs. Dicover.

"I suffered greatly for a number of years and for the past three years was so bad that life was a misery to me," writes Mrs. B. F. Dicover, of Ulica, Ohio, Route 4. "The doctors told me I would have to go to a hospital before I would ever be better. A year ago this winter and spring I was worse than ever before. At each period I suffered like one in torment. I am the mother of six children. I was so bad for five months that I knew something must be done, so I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, telling him as nearly as I could how I suffered. He outlined a course of treatment which I followed to the letter. I took two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a fifty-cent bottle of 'Smart-Weed,' and have never suffered much since. I wish I could tell every suffering woman the world over what a boon Dr. Pierce's medicines are. There is no use wasting time and money doctoring with anything else or any one else."

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y., answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 31 stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing only.

THEOSOPHISTS FIND A CHRIST

doo-Lad as the Real Messiah.

WRITES BOOK AT 14

Paris, April 26.—Theosophists of Paris and those who incline more or less towards theosophy are very much excited over the arrival in the city of Krishnamurti, a 15-year-old lad from India, who is believed by some to be the harbinger of a new Messiah, and by others to be the Messiah himself. Some of the leading newspapers are taking cognizance of him, while Le Martin devotes much conspicuous space to the recent activities of the cult.

Last June Mrs. Anne Besant, president of the Society of Theosophists, in an address at the Sorbonne, in which she declared great changes were at hand, predicted the coming of a great "teacher" who was going to establish a new religion, or, at least, unravel the mysteries of future existence.

She declared that all indications pointed to the rapid disappearance of materialism in philosophy, and said that soon all human minds would be turning to the great beyond, so harshly scoffed at by the so-called rationalists.

Star of Bethlehem Appears Again. Several months ago, observers reported the appearance of a brilliant star, which the theosophists call the Star of the East, and declare to be the same planet which the Scriptures say appeared at the birth of Jesus. They insist it can mean but one thing, the coming of the Master.

Some of the more visionary of their prophets predict that a new continent will rise out of the Pacific ocean and say that the Bogoloff islands, which are said to have arisen in late years of this continent. This, however, is not a belief of the most influential members of the cult.

In spite of the tender age of the boy Krishnamurti, he is already regarded as chief of the cult. He is known as Aleone by the theosophists. He is a Hindu, and he undoubtedly has been brilliantly educated by his preceptors at Aiyar, India.

He Writes a Book at 14.

At the age of 14 he wrote a book entitled, "At the Feet of the Master." Already it has been translated into several languages, and those who have read it say it is marked by exalted thought and dignified diction. His own belief appears to be that he is to prepare the way for one who is to come.

Upon his arrival in Paris several days ago, Krishnamurti presided at a secret meeting of the most representative theosophists of the city. To outsiders he will not discuss his mission further than to say he is in Europe to study occidental thought. He expects to spend several months at Oxford university.

Theosophy has had a rapid growth in this city. Within a year it has increased its membership in Paris by 600.

Happy are the meek. The withholding of mercy tends to poverty, but the liberal soul shall be made fat, for to the merciful he will show himself to be merciful. Forbearing, and forgiving we enter into this happiness, being kind, forgiving, tender-hearted, even as Christ hath forgiven us.

Righteousness Defined.

Happy are the pure for they may draw nigh unto God in full assurance of faith for themselves and on behalf of others. Indeed the writer of Hebrews tells us that without holiness (purity) no man can see God, not our own righteousness wherein we might boast but the righteousness of Christ which is by faith.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

APRIL 28.

Lesson Text—Matt. 5:1-12—Golden Text—"Blessed Are the Pure in Heart for They Shall (No doubt about it) See God."

It was St. Augustine who first gave the ordination address of Jesus, after choosing the twelve, the title of "The Sermon on the Mount," a title now universally accepted. It is better perhaps "The Gospel of the Kingdom," telling us of the characteristics of these members of the new kingdom Jesus came to establish, the influence of these members upon the world, and is a commentary upon the laws of this kingdom. It is this, and more, for it is a prophecy of the church at work and also a text whereby we are to know who belong to this kingdom.

Their Spiritual Meaning. There are in reality only seven of the Beatitudes, the "blessednesses," and seven is always typical of perfection. They are written in Old Testament language, but give the old form a new and spiritual meaning. The rewards are not arbitrary, but are the logical outgrowth of the character depicted.

The first four are passive virtues. Happy are those who are poor in spirit, not the poor-spirited but the humble minded ones conscious of their need. It is the poor, as to this world, that are to be rich in faith and to be heirs of that kingdom which Christ has promised to those that love him (Jas. 2:5). Happy are those that mourn, for they mourn not as those who have no hope, they shall be comforted, yes, they shall be strengthened. Paul tells us of that sorrow which is unto salvation and need not to be repented of, but the sorrow of the world worketh death. Happy are the meek, those who are not proud. The pride of man is soon cut off as grass. In him, the meek and lowly, we are to find rest to our souls. We are exhorted by the meekness and gentleness of Christ to receive instruction and Peter tells us that our ornamentation that shall be of the greatest price is to be meek and quiet in spirit.

At this point the master begins to make his practical application of the lives of those having these characteristics, upon the world about them. Happy are the merciful. The withholding of mercy tends to poverty, but the liberal soul shall be made fat, for to the merciful he will show himself to be merciful. Forbearing, and forgiving we enter into this happiness, being kind, forgiving, tender-hearted, even as Christ hath forgiven us.

Righteousness Defined. Happy are the pure for they may draw nigh unto God in full assurance of faith for themselves and on behalf of others. Indeed the writer of Hebrews tells us that without holiness (purity) no man can see God, not our own righteousness wherein we might boast but the righteousness of Christ which is by faith.

Happy are the peace-makers, the peacemakers, the peacemakers, the

peacemakers, the

MEN WHO HELPED TO MAKE AMERICA.

HUGH MERCER

Curiously enough, one of the men who helped America in the great crisis of the Revolution was a hero of the battle of Culloden, famous in Scotch history. When this battle was fought, in 1746, Hugh Mercer was a surgeon's assistant in the Scottish army. Hugh Mercer was born in Scotland about 1720. He studied medicine in his native land, where he became a physician. After his experience in the British army he emigrated to America and resided in Virginia. When the French and Indian War involved the colonists in conflict, Mercer's fighting blood was up, and with Washington and many other Virginian colonists he joined Braddock's expedition. He was severely wounded in the disastrous battle of the Monongahela, which resulted in the death of Braddock. He returned to Virginia, and upon his recovery retired again into private life. The Revolution brought him back to the ranks of the fighters. This time in the memorable campaign in New Jersey when General Mercer met his fate. On January 3, 1777, the van of Washington's army encountered a division of the British troops already on their way to Join Cornwallis. At first the American militia gave way, but Washington, coming up with a select corps, turned the tide of battle and routed the enemy. The loss of the British in killed, wounded and prisoners was about four hundred men. The American loss did not exceed thirty men, but, unfortunately, gallant General Mercer was one of them. He was regarded as one of Washington's best officers, and his funeral at Philadelphia was attended by thirty thousand persons, a testimonial to the esteem in which the Scotch surgeon was held.

RAPS ROOSEVELT IN MOCK "CREED"

John Sharp Williams Injects Biting Satire Into Senate.

BRISTOW IN DEFENSE

Washington, April 25.—The first sen-ational political debate in the senate at this session of congress broke yesterday over Col. Roosevelt's official correspondence about the International Harvester company while he was president in 1907.

Senator Bristow, of Kansas, was the principal speaker in support of Col.
Roosevelt and Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, was the former president's principal assailant. Mr. Williams characterized the former president as a "modern Caesar, willing to seize power by any means," while Mr. Bristow defended the colonel as the "modern tribune of the people," and warmly criticized President Taft's administration.

Reads a Mock Creed.
The debate became almost ultra-sen-ational when Senator Williams read to the senate a parody on the Apostles' creed
as follows:
"I believe in Theodore Roosevelt, maker of noise and strife, and in ambition, his only creed, (my Lord.) He was born of the love of power, and suffered under William H. Taft; was crucified, dead and buried. He descended into Africa. The third year he rose again from the jungle and ascended into favor and sitteth on the right hand of his party, whence he shall come to scourge the wicked and the dead."
"I believe in the holy Outlook, the big stick, the Annanias club, the forgiveness of political activities, the resurrection of presidential ambitions and the third term everlasting. Amen, Amen,
Amen."

What Started It.
The debate was precipitated by Senator Bristow's return to his charge that collusion had existed between the senate and the department of justice in the sending of the official correspondence Wednesday and that partially had been shown in the proceedings in the course of President Roosevelt's administration had been sent to the senate while the papers relating to the Taft administration's proceedings had not.

Senator Johnston denied that there had been an understanding and declared he had seen neither the attorney general or the president for a month. Senator Nelson interjected that his sympathies would be with the democrats if Col.
Roosevelt should be elected.
"You will get the worst of it," he said.

All Will Get Worst of It.
"Not the democratic party only but the entire American people will get the worst of it," retorted Mr. Williams. He declared that if Americans were not careful they might sink into Caesarism.
He referred to the former president as "Saint Theodore" and said that when Mr. Roosevelt had spoken of good trusts and bad trusts he had meant to imply that trusts supporting the administration must be dealt with leniently while those which fought it must be treated severely.

TWO WERE HELD PRISONERS.
Hungarian Laborers Wanted Cash; Not Checks on Banks.
Bloomington, Ind., April 25.—After being imprisoned in a shack for two days and nights without food or water, two sub-contractors and foremen, who are engaged in building a branch line for the Illinois Central railroad near here, were rescued from a band of angry Hungarians late yesterday by Sheriff Browning and a company of deputies. The trouble started when the contractors started to pay off with checks on a local bank. The Hungarians demanded cash and when it was not supplied, locked the sub-contractors and foremen in a shack and threatened to kill any one who tried to release them.

TRAIN BLOWN FROM TRACK.
Omaha, Neb., April 25.—Twenty-nine persons were injured, one of them, James Davis, perhaps fatally, when a wind storm struck Union Pacific passenger train No. 35, a mile west of North Loup, Neb., late yesterday afternoon. The entire train, the engine excepted, was blown from the track and all the cars were overturned.

A mile of telegraph line was blown down, cutting off direct communication with larger outside cities for several hours.

As soon as Engineer O'Brien realized what had happened, he ran his engine to Ord and returned with a car in which the injured were taken to Ord.

RAPID RISE IN A RIVER'S BED

The Arkansas In Kansas Is Filling Up Rapidly
With Sand.

DAMAGES FARM LAND

Topeka, April 25.—Residents of the Arkansas valley are going to have to spend a lot of money in the next few years to save the rich valley lands from damage from high water. The filling up of the river bed with sand is becoming more marked every year and it will not be long until every freshet will cause an overflow. A probable cause of this is the diversion of so much water by irrigation that not enough is left to cause the normal scour in the bed of the stream.

For 200 miles in Kansas the Arkansas river has been filling its bed very rapidly. The filling appears from Great Bend to Arkansas City, where the river enters the rocky hills country. While everyone who lives along the river has realized the filling up process, no one thought of it as a possible menace until the government report on Kansas rivers came out a few days ago.

H. N. Parker, special officer of the United States geological survey, made a study of Kansas streams for nearly a year and in his report says:

"The Arkansas river valley was formerly much deeper than it now is. The filling in process has been in operation sufficiently long to raise the channel of the stream to the level of its flood plane and doubtless has raised very appreciably the general level of its flood plane."

Changes in the Channel.
All along the river valley there are evidences of where the river changed its channel in comparatively recent years.
From eight miles southeast of Hutchinson to ten miles southeast of Wichita there is an old channel of the river known now as the Big Slough. Often the Arkansas river sends water down this old channel as the bed of the slough is lower than the present bed of the main stream.
There are records in the historical society of early travelers who found the river in this old channel and it moved into its present one within the last eighty years.

ARE MADE PRETTY UNDER RED LIGHT

Girls Paid for It in Dark Rooms of Moving Picture Establishment.

CURES NERVES, TOO

New York, April 26.—Persons passing the new public playground on Grand street, near Hoboken, at noon, are likely to pause in astonishment when the door of a certain brick factory building opens and out come the toilers into the bright sunlight reflected from the high gray stone cliffs.

"The prettiest girls in the world" is generally the comment. That enthusiasm may be too great, but there is ground for it. Graceful figures and strawberry-and-cream complexions are the rule among the young girls who issue from this factory, 1010 Grand street, Hoboken.

"Wonder how they get such lovely girls to work for them?" ask neighbors. But those who remember the blue glass craze of thirty years ago and the following red glass fanaticism, when women sat for hours in the light crimson panes to bring back the roses to their faded cheeks, smiled and looked wise.

They said the prettiest girls in the moving picture factory were the forty or fifty who worked in the dark room. They pointed out that for nine hours a day these girls sat in total darkness, with only the rays of the ruby red lanterns falling upon them. No wonder they were pretty. It was a strike of twenty girls last week that brought into publicity one of the strangest modern occupations for women.

No Ray of Daylight There.

In the heart of a large building in Hoboken is the printing room, a dark, windowless apartment supplied with fresh air by a power blower. Into it no ray of light of out of doors ever comes. It is here that the films from the moving-picture cameras are made after the photographers have taken the pictures. They are from all over the world and from many stages where love scenes are portrayed.

From the negative that results from the camera's work many films are made. These, on long strips of celluloid, go into moving picture machines and throw the scenes upon the screens.

The big room is approached by a passage that twists and turns to shut out light. One passes along it with the feeling one might experience on entering the forbidden precincts of a sultan's palace. Suddenly a turn in the passage and there comes the soft clatter of many delicate machines that are perforating the films and printing them, and you see the soft light of ruby red lanterns hanging fantastically about the room and making one think of Chinatown on the night of the celebration of New Year's.

You hear the soft rustle of skirts, suppressed titters, the drone of a forewoman's voice giving instructions and always the subdued mechanical sound of many machines at work.

A Ruby Girl Indeed.

The eyes became more accustomed to the darkness suddenly between you and a red glass surface over a machine comes the delicate profile of a young girl bending over her work, her hair fluffily glorified by the ruby light behind. As you move about at the suggestion of the guide who wants to explain the machines, soft hands come out of the darkness to steer you by the elbows away from chairs or mechanism. There are whispered comments, suppressed laughs and now and then a spoken word relating to the work.

You are told that hundreds and thousands of photographs of romantic scenes, pretty women, cowboys, lion hunts, etc., are being printed over and over again here in this chamber of mysteries. Gradually your eyes become trained and out of the darkness comes shadowgraphs of young women sitting comfortably at their work, but always in the strange contrast of blood-red light and black darkness.

The strike was in this factory. Some of the papers printed stories to the effect that it was because they had to work long hours in total darkness, that it ruined their eyes, that it spoiled their health.

As assistant forewoman who went out with the strikers said the cause of the strike was purely personal—a quarrel between the girls and the forewoman.

"The work is all right," she said. "It is easy, restful and congenial to most girls, and we haven't any fault to find with the factory. We work nine hours a day in the dark room, except Saturdays, when we only work seven. There is a pretty and pleasant lounging room where we can go out in the daylight when work is slack. The darkness does not hurt our eyes, and the red light is not injurious so far as I can see."

Hailed as a Nerve Cure.

"Some people have even said it was healthy, that it has a beneficial effect upon the nerves of growing girls. Most of us are between 16 and 21. We have been told that it improves the complexion and makes the mind stronger. I don't know about that. None of our girls are fussy and cross, I know that. "I don't actually know whether there is anything in the theory that people who work continually in the rays of red lamps are healthier," said Supt. Mason. "Our girls here are a pretty healthy and hearty lot. We never made any effort to pick out pretty girls. I would not dare to say whether they have grown more beautiful since working in the dark with red light about them. Perhaps! Who can tell? They are a fine lot of girls, anyway."

The pay of the girls ranges from $8 down to $5.50 a week. The work in the dark room consists of threading up the printing machines with films and watching that they work all right.

The mother of a girl who sits nine hours a day in the dark room, with the red light flowing over and around her, said:

"Since my daughter has been working down there she's become the sweetest tempered girl I know. She used to get up fussy and cross. Now she wakes up with a smile. She used to have freckles. She hasn't one now. She's grown thoughtful, and I know from her that those dark-room girls want nothing better than to stay home nights."

INAUGURATE NEW PLAN.

Everybody realizes the advantage of a fruit tree in the dooryard from which the table can be supplied with fresh ripe fruit. For years it has been impossible to secure choice standard varieties on account of the expense of canvassing and delivering in small lots. Bash & Co. of this city, have inaugurated a new system of selling fruit trees, which means a saving of thousands of dollars to our people and a more widespread use and enjoyment of every kind of fruit grown in this climate. Think of peach trees, all varieties, at 10c each; cherry, plum and pear trees, 15c, and apple trees 20c each. Concord grapes, 2 year old, 5c each; rhubarb roots, 5c each; asparagus, 1c each. All kinds of shrubs, clematis, etc., for almost nothing. Our people should show their appreciation for a firm that has practically revolutionized the fruit tree business.
